Is it time that you armed your insurance operation with some tools to defeat the fraudster? 192 Prove-ID is an identity verification solution that will verify names, addresses, dates of births, driving licence information and other personal or business details that are part of your policy creation and claims processes.

Here's how leading insurance companies such as Axa, Friends Provident and Admiral are already using our ID check solutions to defend against the casual and organised insurance fraudster.

At point of policy creation:

Our ID check solutions verify full name, address, length of residency, date of birth, co-habitees and a range of personal characteristics so you can be sure that your policy holders are all that they claim to be....

During the claims process:

Our ID checks can be applied quickly and easily to any individual, business entity, or location relating to an insurance claim. Personal characteristics of claimants or locations can be verified or questioned using our vast array of databases.

To recover lost policy holders or overdue policy payments:

Our ID checks can also be used to locate the latest address or telephone number for policy holders or for their next-of-kin to speed up debt recovery and revenue collection.

How does 192 Prove-ID work?

Modern insurance operations gather policy and claimant details through multiple channels such as websites, call centres and customer services teams.

192 Prove-ID verifies policy application and policy claim details in less than a second without affecting the customer experience.

Insurers can be confident in writing policies knowing that they are not dealing with a fraudster and that claimant details are not based on false or stolen personal information.

Personal information collected during policy creation or the claims process is presented to our ID check solution called 192 Prove-ID.

These personal characteristics are tested against government sources such as the Electoral Roll and credit reference databases, including data from financial services companies.

192 Prove-ID generates a report that verifies name, address, age, driving licence information, passport details and other personal characteristics to allow insurers to make an informed decision based on the accuracy of the details submitted.
